What is an air raid shelter?

Air raid shelters are structures for the protection of non-combatants as well as combatants against enemy attacks from the air. They are like bunkers in many regards, although they are not designed to defend against ground attack (but many have been used as defensive structures in such situations). Pre-Second World War.

What is JTK power air raid shelter equipment?

JTK Power has continued developing their air raid shelter equipment and in 2020 the company released their modern solution for new air raid shelters in the form of S1 classified ventilation unit. The ventilation unit is equipped with activated carbon filter which filters several poison gasses.

Why were air raid shelters built?

Air raid shelters were built to serve as protection against enemy air raids. Existing edifices designed for other functions, such as underground stations (tube or subway stations), tunnels, cellars in houses or basements in larger establishments and railway arches, above ground, were suitable for safeguarding people during air raids.

When did air raid shelters start?

In 1935, every city in the country was given a document to prepare air raid shelters. In February 1936, the Home Secretary appointed a technical Committee on Structural Precautions against Air Attack.
