

South African solar container lithium battery energy storage manufacturing plant

Overview

How does battery storage work in South Africa?

Battery storage systems offer a solution by storing surplus energy generated during peak production periods and releasing it when demand is high, ensuring a consistent and reliable power supply. The South African government has acknowledged the potential of battery storage and has set ambitious targets for its deployment.

How can South Africa develop a sustainable and competitive battery storage industry?

Addressing this gap is crucial for the development of a sustainable and competitive domestic industry. Competition: The global battery storage industry is already dominated by established players, particularly in Asian countries. South Africa needs to develop a strong value proposition to attract investments and compete effectively.

Who owns the Red Sands battery energy storage system?

Updated 1st July 2025 – The Red Sands Battery Energy Storage System (BESS), set to be Africa's largest of its kind, has officially reached commercial close. Developed by Globeleq, which is 30% owned by Norfund, in partnership with African Rainbow Energy, the 153 MW/612 MWh project was signed off in June 2025 in Cape Town.

Does South Africa manufacture batteries?

Technically speaking, South Africa has no facilities that can manufacture batteries from start to finish. That is because there is no plant producing the cells that form the basic building blocks of batteries.
